Southampton: A Question?
October 9, 2009 • 7:30 – 9:00 PM

Setting the Agenda for a Sustainable Future
Fine Arts Building, Stony Brook Southampton

Followed by a reception in the Avram Lobby Gallery Introducing the exhibit:
Seeing Southampton Visually investigating issues that affect the environment of Southampton.

As we close the first decade of the 21st Century, we should take stock of how we dwell upon our Earth. In the spirit of thinking globally and acting locally, a group of colleagues are initiating a dialog with Activists, Architects, Artists, Citizens, Designers, Educators, Environmentalists and Planners who shape the township of Southampton.

Map of Southampton Township

A single drop of water

The future of Stony Brook Southampton is inextricably linked to the fabric of Southampton Township, the East End of Long Island and the global dialogue on the environment. On the evening of October 9th we will host a symposium that brings together a diverse group of concerned individuals to canvas their notion of elements essential to the evolution of the town. Our goal is to provoke, record, define and present a holistic set of interconnected guiding principles for evolving our community in the 21st century. On December 13 we will present an interim summation of this discourse. During the years to come we will widen our conversation to an international level.
